Hawaiian Railroad Status

Washington, Dec. 19.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has recently defined the status of railroads in the Hawaiian Islands as regards their relation to the railroad rate law. The commission has decided that the Oahu Railroad and Land Company may properly charge different rates for the same service, under certain conditions, providing the tariff schedules are filed with the commission. This railroad feared that in making these different rates it might be violating the Elkins law and brought the question itself before the Interstate Commerce Commission for decision.

It seems that the road has contracts with several plantations in Hawaii by which sugar is shipped to Honolulu at a specified rate. Many of these contracts were made before the annexation of the islands for a long term of years. A certain rate was fixed for the first ten years and a lower rate for the next ten years, and so on. These rates were explained to the commission by Sidney Ballou, attorney for the road, and L. A. Thurston and F. M. Hatch, who came on from Hawaii for a hearing in the case last week.

The contract rates represent about 88 per cent. of the business of the road and are lower than the rate charged to other shippers for similar service, but it was shown that the difference was small and that the contract freight was handled by the plantations. When the contract with the Ewa plantation recently expired the railroad made the same rate to all shippers to that station.

After looking into the whole question the Interstate Commerce Commission decided that there were no provisions in the Elkins law which would endanger the road in fixing these rates and that any apparent discriminations which the road makes in its rates were warranted by conditions. The commission reserves the right to pass up on the dual tariffs at any time in case any shipper makes complaint that he is charged an unjust or unreasonable rate. While the discriminations are approved, the commission warned the road that it must stand ready to defend them whenever complaint against them is made.

Mr. Ballou, before returning to Hawaii, will confer with the counsel of the Pacific Cable Company at New York regarding its libel of $300,000 against the steamship Manchuria for services of the Restorer in rescuing the liner some weeks ago.

Sensible Gifts for Smokers

It's sensible to give him what he wants, isn't it?

If he smokes, he'll want to smoke again, won't he?

Then why not get him a box of the famous ADELINE PATTI ROUGH RIDERS, HAWAIIAN, PORTO RICAN or KEY WEST CIGARS. Either of them is a capital good smoke; the choice lies with the price you wish to pay.

"You'll Want Something He'll Keep"

Well, truthfully now, what would be a more substantial and appreciated present than one of these? A Pipe, Cigar or Cigarette Holder, Matchbox, Tobacco Jars or Pouches, or, best of all, a pretty Humidor Box made to hold cigars and keep them fresh.

There is a big assortment of these goods here and they are priced RIGHT. Why not come in and see them? You are welcome to look.
